Mark Odom Studio

m(odm) strives to balance one's seemingly chaotic environment with the calculated rules of proportion and function.

“continuously looking for a balanced orchestra between the controlled elegance of simplicity and energy of the site”

We welcome client relationships and dialogue during all phases of development, for a true collaboration between owner and studio. With the belief that every project generates its own set of specifics, our approach is free of preconceived ideas, with every response a thoughtful reference to client, budget, and site.

The studio pursues likeminded clientele who are willing to place a value on exploration. We continuously seek a balanced consideration of the client's needs, materials, site amenities, kinetics of environment, social consciousness, and budget requirements.

Through the assemblage of form, space, material, and light we hope to leave our clientele with an unexpected representation of themselves that excites the senses for years to come.

“reach a common public that is willing to look at things in another light, uoiɔæɪɪp, color, material, or form.”
